Event Registration Procedure

STUDY GROUPS AND SIGS ARE SUBJECT TO LOTTERY THIS TERM

OLLI has created a more equitable registration process that also addresses operational problems on the first day of registration. The process applies only to Study Groups and Shared Interest Groups (SIG) this term. Registration for all other OLLI offerings are not subject to lottery.

HERE IS WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW FOR STUDY GROUPS AND SHARED INTEREST GROUPS (SIGS) REGISTRATION:

◆ The initial registration period will run from 10:00am – 4:00 pm, December 19 – January 9. You can register at any time during this period and receive equal consideration for classes that become oversubscribed.

◆ All oversubscribed study groups and Shared Interest Groups (SIGs) will be subject to a lottery to give everyone an equal chance to get in. Early registration does not increase your chances.

◆ Everyone who applies for programs that become subject to the lottery will be notified of the outcome by 5:00pm on January 10.

◆ Members who are not selected will be given refunds, placed on a wait list, and invited to join if space becomes available. Our goal is to issue refunds the week after the lottery

◆ Registration for classes that are not full will still be possible after January 9.

◆ As before, you can register on-line or by mail. (The preferred method for registration for this term is online since staff ability to process mailed registrations is more limited due to COVID-19)

◆ All payments must be made at the time of registration.

* These dates are tentative because of the new computer database system, CampusCE, being implemented at OLLI. While these are our goal dates, there may be some bugs that need working through. We thank you for your patience. Please watch the website main page and the OLLI weekly newsletter for updates.

Questions about registrations or paying the annual $25 fee? Please contact the OLLI office via e-mail at olli.info@umich.edu or by phone at (734) 998-9351.

Scholarships are available for membership and all programs. To request a scholarship, please contact the OLLI office via e-mail at olli.info@umich.edu or by phone at (734) 998-9351.

In 2019, OLLI-UM adopted a strategic plan that mandated the creation of our own Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) Committee in order to ensure that DEI values would be infused throughout our program at every level. The committee drafted a mission statement which is detailed below. Our goal was to lay out a road map for the program and ourselves, so that we would be accountable in realizing our objectives.

DEI MISSION STATEMENT

The mission of the DEI Committee is to increase the diversity of OLLI membership and create an environment that welcomes all; increase awareness of racial, social, economic, educational and health disparities experienced by marginalized communities; encourage members’ self-education and self-reflection on issues related to implicit bias; and promote positive, transformational change leading to the eradication of racial and social injustice in ourselves, the OLLI membership, and the community-at-large.

We will do this through:

- Spearheading efforts that lead to continuing awareness and education of our members on issues related to racial and social inequities through lectures, workshops, book discussions, and study groups, and encouraging members to initiate their own self-education on these issues.

- Evaluating strategies wherever possible in order to identify positive and negative outcomes such that initiatives can either be continued or improved upon.

- Working closely with other OLLI committees to ensure DEI principles are infused and integrated throughout the organization.

- Working as a bloc or as individuals to help influence formal and informal policies that can be implemented to effect positive change.

- Partnering with other organizations and committees with similar aims internal and external to U-M to collaborate on relevant programming and initiatives.

OLLI-UM is a community program of the Geriatrics Center.
The DEI Committee has now started to identify additional partners with similar aims to determine shared interests, and together plan activities, programming and educational opportunities to expand our collective reach.

As you can see, OLLI has set in motion a thoughtful and determined process for fulfilling our DEI mission and values as outlined in our strategic plan.

BUT WE ARE JUST GETTING STARTED!

With the DEI Committee’s leadership, OLLI and our programs will become richer and deeper, including understanding America’s past and current history in racism, exploring strategies for its eradication, and learning about the significant contributions which marginalized groups have made to America’s greatness. Please join us so that all voices can be heard and represented in our community and beyond.

The OLLI DEI Committee is always looking for new members; won’t you consider joining us?

Learning to Talk to Each Other – The Braver Angels Story

January 25, 2023 | 1:00 pm
Online Only

Political polarization continues to make strangers out of fellow citizens. Polarization can break up long standing friendships, even familial relations. Opportunities have been missed to engage with and develop fruitful relationships with fellow citizens.

Braver Angels is a national organization, founded shortly after the 2016 presidential election, that aims to teach people with polarized views how to literally sit in the same room (or these days, the same ZOOM call) and speak to each other. Braver Angels runs workshops, debates, and other events where “red” (conservative) and “blue” (liberal) participants attempt to better understand each other’s positions and discover their shared values. Braver Angels’ stated mission is to ‘bring Americans together to bridge the partisan divide and strengthen our democratic republic’.

OLLI members will be fascinated to hear how Braver Angels is attempting to accomplish what many of us, in our own lives, may have thought impossible.

At our OLLI presentation on January 25, 1:00 pm, we will meet Randy Lioz, the Braver Angels Senior Director of Events and PartnerEngagement. We will learn from Randy about the founding of Braver Angels, how they are working to achieve their mission, and what results are being achieved. We will also pick up ideas on how we might improve our own challenging personal relationships.

What Should the Work Ethic Mean for Us Today?

January 10, 10:00 - 11:30am
Professor Elizabeth Anderson
Max Shaye Professor of Public Philosophy
University of Michigan

The work ethic was invented by Puritans 400 years ago. From the start, it contained contradictory ideas: one rationalizing the subjection of workers to drudgery for profit; the other honoring workers for advancing human welfare and calling for their dignified and equitable treatment. Both ideas were developed over time, leaving a contradictory legacy for us today. I show how the neglected second work ethic tradition can be revived and updated for 21st-century American workers.

Elizabeth Anderson is Max Shaye Professor of Public Philosophy at University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. She has taught at UM since 1987, specializing in moral and political philosophy, especially on democratic theory, egalitarianism and its history, and the ethics of work. She is a MacArthur Fellow and designed the Philosophy, Politics, and Economics Program at University of Michigan.

The views expressed are those of the speakers and do not necessarily reflect those of OLLI-UM or the University of Michigan.

This Distinguished Lecture Series was planned by Ron Frisch, Gerald Gardner, Beverley Geltner, Leo Shedden, Frances Shultz, Marie Vitale, Katherine Woo, Chair Al Gourdji.
Finding Catholics In Early America: Lessons From the Archives

Tuesday, February 14, 10:00 - 11:30am
Professor Susan Juster
University of Michigan

How do we find people in the past who don’t want to be found? Catholicism in post-Reformation England was a fugitive faith. In the century before the first colonial settlements were established in North America. In the early 1600s, English Catholics had lived a twilight existence, scarcely visible in the archives. Their faith was driven underground, their priests were hunted down and executed, their children taken away from them, and their dead denied Christian burial. Men and women who adhered to the old faith learned to live in the shadows. This talk explores some of the evidence available to historians who seek to understand the world colonial Catholics made for themselves, drawing examples from both textual and material sources.

Susan Juster, The Rhys Isaac Collegiate Professor of History, received her Ph.D from the University of Michigan in 1990. She works on early American cultural history, with a focus on religion in a transatlantic context. Her publications include Sacred Violence in Early America (2016), Doomsayers, Anglo-American Prophecy in the Age of Revolution (2003), and Disorderly Women, Sexual Politics and Evangelicalism in Revolutionary New England (1994). She is currently working on a study of the material and ritual lives of English Catholics in the North American and Caribbean colonies from the early 17th through the mid 18th century.

Lessons For the Ages: Everything I Needed to Know I learned in Introductory Psychology

Tuesday, March 14, 10:00 - 11:30am
Dr. Shelly Schreier
University of Michigan

This lecture will focus on the relevance of the field of psychology to our understanding of self and the world around us.

Dr. Shelly Schreier is the Neil M. Kalter Collegiate Lecturer IV in the Department of Psychology at the University of Michigan. Dr. Schreier teaches several courses, including Introductory Psychology, Social Development, and Psychological Development Through Children’s Literature. Her early research focused on the effects of divorce on children and families. She has been recognized for her teaching with several honors, including UM’s Golden Apple Award in 2013.

Expanding the Science of Firearm Injury Prevention: A Pathway Forward for Reducing Death and Injury in the United States

Tuesday, April 11, 10:00 - 11:30am
Patrick Carter, MD
University of Michigan

Dr. Patrick Carter will provide an overview of the public health problem of firearm injury, as well as describe how prevention science can be applied to help reduce and mitigate firearm injuries occurring across the lifespan.

Dr. Patrick Carter is an Associate Professor of Emergency Medicine (School of Medicine) and Health Behavior & Health Education (School of Public Health) at the University of Michigan. He is also the Director of the CDC-funded University of Michigan Injury Prevention Center and part of the leadership team for the NICHD-funded Firearm Safety among Children and Teens (FACTS) Consortium. Dr. Carter’s research is within the field of firearm injury prevention, specifically the development, testing, and implementation of emergency department (ED)-based interventions to decrease firearm violence, youth violence, and associated risk behaviors such as substance use among high-risk urban youth populations.

The Other Gasses: The Politics of Short-Lived Climate Pollutants

Tuesday, May 9, 10:00 - 11:30am

Professor Barry Rabe
University of Michigan

Carbon dioxide dominates most discussions of climate change, a powerful greenhouse gas that remains potent in the atmosphere for long periods. However, its capacity for warming is compounded by a series of short-lived climate pollutants, such as methane, hydrofluorocarbons (HFCs), and black carbon. These contaminants do not last nearly as long in the atmosphere as carbon but have a far more intensive short-term impact. This presentation will examine the politics of reducing these gases, with a particular focus on methane and HFCs. It will examine major policy advances in the case of HFCs, including bipartisan legislation in the United States and a robust global regulatory system, in contrast with other short-lived climate pollutants.

Barry Rabe is the J. Ira and Nicki Harris Family Professor of Public Policy at the Gerald Ford School of Public Policy and the Arthur Thurnau Professor of Environmental Policy at the University of Michigan. He is also a non-resident senior fellow at the Brookings Institution and is an elected fellow of the National Academy of Public Administration. Rabe is a political scientist who examines the political feasibility of adopting and implementing environmental, energy and climate policies in federal systems such as the United States and Canada. His most recent books examine the politics of putting a price on carbon emissions and the limitations of climate policy reliant on executive branch action rather than legislation.

Migration: The Complicated History of the United States

Tuesday, June 13, 10:00 - 11:30am

Professor Saeed Khan
Wayne State University

This lecture will explore the complex and often politicized history of migration and the United States. It will also locate this history within the broader discussions and debates about migration globally over the past decade.

Saeed A. Khan is an Associate Professor in the Classical/Modern Lang/Culture Dept at Wayne State University. He teaches Islamic and Middle East History, Politics and Culture and where he is also a Fellow at the Center for the Study of Citizenship. His primary area of research is the identity politics of Muslim Diaspora communities in the US, UK, and Europe. He is also Adjunct Professor of Islamic Studies at the University of Detroit-Mercy and at Rochester College, a panelist on CBC’s Turning Point and contributor to Detroit Today on Detroit Public Radio.

Plastics and the Carbon Age: Environmental and Health Impacts

January 12 - February 16, 2023

Thursdays, 10:00 - 11:30am

$36/series or $10/day pass

The evolution of our civilization has been defined by the primary materials we use. Consider the Stone Age followed by the Bronze Age, the Iron Age, and so forth. Today, we live in what scientists call the Carbon Age, with many of our materials—including plastics—derived from petroleum. Though these materials have proven to be useful in many ways, their negative impacts are of increasing concern. This series will take an in-depth look at the environmental and health impacts of plastics. Do discarded plastics threaten marine and freshwater ecosystems? What are the health impacts of plastic food containers, toys, wastes, etc. on humans and other life forms? How significant are these impacts now and into the future? Are there viable alternatives to plastics? What are possible solutions to the plastics “problem”?

Human Migration Through the Ages

April 13 - May 18, 2023
Thursdays, 10:00 - 11:30am
$36/series or $10/day pass

Migration has been part of the human story since the beginning of time. Modern humans left the African continent between 50,000-70,000 years ago and migrated east into Asia and north into Europe. About 15,000 years ago or possibly earlier humans arrived in the Americas.

In early times human movement was often motivated by a search for better food sources, more hospitable environments, population pressures, and tensions between neighboring groups. Many negative factors have had a significant influence on migration throughout human history including poverty, disease, natural disasters, war, and persecution. There are also positive forces that have encouraged migration such as new economic opportunities, more tolerant political systems, and curiosity about other cultures and environments. A key driver from prehistoric to recent times has been climate change.

This series will look at migration causes and impacts in various time periods and in different cultures.

Jason Eyster has been writing and performing music since high school. He studied composition with Lawrence Widdoes (Julliard School of Music) and worked for filmmakers Hugh and Suzanne Johnston as a sound engineer and composer, writing the score for the award-winning PBS documentary, “Education Unbound.” As a Business Representative at Actors’ Equity, after law school, Jason was in charge of overseeing the union’s agreements for Broadway Dramatic and Off-Broadway productions. He then moved to Michigan where he served as Executive Director of Ars Musica, the Baroque Orchestra. Detroit Reimagined - Historic Buildings Find New Uses

Friday, June 23, 2023 | 8:00am – 5:30pm
Cost: $90.00 (includes lunch, snacks, tips)
Location: Meet at Meijer Parking Lot, 3825 Carpenter Rd., Ypsilanti, MI | Masks recommended but not required

Spend the day with OLLI friends and Lis Knibbe, architect and pioneer in historic preservation, on a walking tour of Downtown and Midtown Detroit. In Downtown, the tour will visit historic buildings that have been adapted for new uses, including a number of buildings that were among the most infamous for their long vacancies, but that now are providing the backbone for the revitalization of the downtown. In Midtown, we will see how one building’s improvement leads to the next and the next until the area, once again, teams with activity. The tour will include the “worst block” north of Downtown that was transformed into a mixed-use block with entertainment, restaurant, residential and office uses. We will enjoy lunch at The Block restaurant in Midtown.

For 40 years, Elisabeth Knibbe, FAIA (Lis) used her architectural career to help rebuild cities (Detroit, Lansing, Toledo, Jackson) through the reuse of historic buildings. Her work ranged from traditional restoration of historic landmarks to the adaptive use of historic buildings in very poor condition. Her work began with the restoration of the Old Wayne County and Fox Theater Buildings in Detroit, two of Detroit’s architectural gems, and ended with the adaptive use of the Metropolitan and Wurlitzer Buildings, two of Detroit’s most notorious ruins. Her career included the adaptive use of houses, offices, industrial buildings, schools and hospitals into housing, offices, hotels and schools – none were reused for their original purpose.

Cary who lives in Thousand Oaks, California, received his master’s degree in folklore from UCLA and, currently, is completing a term as president of the Association for Recorded Sound Collections (ARSC).
“Guatemala” is a virtual program sponsored by the Archaeological Legacy Institute. In the heart of Central America, Guatemala possesses a unique and fascinating cultural heritage, combining ancient Mayan spiritual beliefs with an untamed natural world. However, the march of time and the inexorable growth of the population are now threatening local heritage sites and ecosystems, not all of which are widely known and appreciated. In order to preserve their patrimony, committed men and women struggle daily. And we can look forward to the time when UNESCO will register these places on its list of World Heritage sites.

JOIN AN OLLI SHARED INTEREST GROUP (SIG)

A SIG brings people together who have a common interest that they wish to pursue indefinitely within a structure of meetings and activities designed primarily by the members of the group. A SIG will strive to develop a sense of community and friendship among its members even as it endeavors to enhance members’ skills, education, and experiences.

A SIG IS DIFFERENT FROM A TRADITIONAL STUDY GROUP

♦ A SIG does not have a formal class syllabus.
♦ Members of a SIG determine the content and discussion of a SIG. A designated facilitator arranges meetings, takes attendance, and initiates the discussion among the SIG members on how the group will operate.
♦ Persons within a SIG are assured of ongoing membership in it until they decide not to participate.
♦ A SIG does not have a formal ending date.
♦ SIGS vary in how often they meet.
The following SIGs are full:

- Syd Kaufman Mystery Authors Book Club led by Wendy Mead and Timothy Richards. This SIG renews every January.
- A Study of Ethics led by Stu Simon and Beth Kon. This SIG renews every September.
- Contemporary Issues led by Bill Milne and Paul Wenger. This SIG renews every September.

The following SIGs have spaces available:

- The Future of Healthcare in the U.S.
  - Led by Bruce Friedman
  - This SIG renews every September.

  Healthcare is undergoing radical changes. Consider robotic surgery, immunotherapy for cancer, the staggering cost of new drugs, whole genome sequencing, detailed imaging of the brain, walk-in clinics in drug stores, and telemedicine.

  Participants in this SIG will consider one aspect of such changes each month and discuss the consequences for their families and on a national basis. Health practitioners are encouraged to register for the SIG in order to enrich the discussion with their personal expertise and knowledge.

- The Schmoozery: At Our Age, In this Age
  - Led by Hank Greenspan
  - This SIG renews every September.

  The Schmoozery began in 2020 and has been meeting weekly since then. Along with a core group of regular participants, we always welcome new members to the schmooze. The format is simple: a facilitated conversation in which we share stories and reflections about topics that arise from week to week. That has included aging, generations, health, family, legacies, friendship, and whatever is “hot” for us at that meeting. The specific issues and themes are less important than the chance to listen to, and learn with, each other. That is, the goal is to have the best possible conversation about things that matter. And to have fun at the same time. We usually do.
Artificial Intelligence 360

Led by Deb Mukherjee
This SIG renews in January. OPEN TO NEW MEMBERS in 2023!

The AI field continues to move at a breathtaking pace, with near-weekly announcements of surprising breakthroughs and mind-bending research - broadcast via blog posts, conference papers, web videos and media interviews. AI today is a global phenomenon. There is no AI Winter in our near future. The world moves briskly forward with object recognition, universal language translation, conversation and humanoid robots that talk, gesture and dance. Building human level machine intelligence, or AGI, embodied as robots continues to be the holy grail.

Fervent believers, defiant contrarians, radical experimenters and centrist thought leaders populate this new AI ecosystem.

The AI 360 SIG that began in 2022 will continue in 2023. The scope will be expanded to include news/ideas from fields like cognitive neuroscience, computer science, psychology, etc. that also inform and inspire the AI field.

The main AI topics and themes covered in 2022 will be refreshed to reflect the latest breakthroughs, recent successes and failures, and will be presented in the opening sessions to reorient the SIG to the core AI concepts discussed in the prior year.

This SIG is a platform for a conceptual understanding of the AI breakthroughs, and for a robust discussion on various emerging and persisting AI topics.

In 2023 the SIG will meet twice a month. Each session will last 2 hours. Meeting schedules and topics will be finalized by participants.

OLLI Reads is delighted to welcome Scott Ellsworth for a discussion of his award-winning adventure story The World Beneath Their Feet: Mountaineering, Madness, and the Deadly Race to Summit the Himalayas. Winner of the 2020 National Book Award for Best History/Biography, The World Beneath Their Feet is a story of survival, technological innovation, and breathtaking human physical achievement. All of which is set against the backdrop of a world headed toward war.

As tension steadily rises between European powers in the 1930s, a different kind of battle is already raging across the Himalayas. Teams of mountaineers from Great Britain, Nazi Germany, and the United States are all competing to be the first to climb the world’s highest peaks, including Mount Everest and K2. Unlike climbers today, they have few photographs or maps, no properly working oxygen systems, and they wear leather boots and cotton parkas. Amazingly, and against all odds, they soon go farther and higher than anyone could have imagined.

Library Journal describes the book as "an excellent overview of mountaineering and exploration that will appeal to mountaineers and armchair adventurers."

Soldier Magazine says that “it is a fine piece of writing, filled with drama, courage, endeavor and, at times, it is easy to put oneself on the mountainside experiencing the freezing gales whistling round one’s tent."

Michigan Daily says simply, “Beautifully written.”

Scott Ellsworth is an award-winning author and professor of history at the University of Michigan. Trained as a historian, he received his Ph.D from Duke University in 1982 where he was a member of the Duke Oral History Program. He has written two books about the race riot in his home town of Tulsa, Oklahoma - Death in a Promised Land, the first-ever comprehensive history of the massacre, and The Ground Breaking: An American City and Its Search for Justice - a follow-up focusing on ongoing efforts to uncover the unmarked graves of massacre victims and to seek compensation for the survivors. He is also the author of The Secret Game - the story of how a group of forgotten college basketball players helped create one of the most meaningful moments in basketball history. It won a 2016 PEN Book Award and was named by the Chicago Tribune as one of the Top Ten Books of the Year.

Before joining the the Department of African American Studies, Dr. Ellsworth was a historian with the Smithsonian Institution. He has written for major national publications and appeared in both film and broadcast documentaries on American history.

Those of you who attended Scott Ellsworth’s OLLI Reads presentation a year ago already know what a fine speaker he is.
Study groups come in a variety of formats but what they all have in common is that they are small, generally ranging in size from 6 to 30 participants. In many study groups, the leader will present material and lead a discussion afterward. In some, the discussion occurs throughout the class with the leader acting as moderator. In some, the leader and the group will take turns providing the material and leading the discussion.

Studies have found that one of the best ways to retain what one has learned in reading about a topic or listening to a lecture is to discuss it with others. In addition, discussion with a diverse group of other learners may bring new insights that would not occur otherwise.
ART AND ARCHITECTURE

Monday Painters

Our study group not only studies, we actively use any art material available to us. The students are experienced painters as well as novices. We do our homework and see weekly videos pertaining to art and help each other navigate Zoom as well as the world of art. We also appreciate each other’s work and the growth we see and talk about our common interests and goals. I am a retired special education teacher who used art to help teach my children as they learned in different ways that made sense to them. Since I retired, I have taken many classes and learned from expert teachers.

Roma Aeterna: The People, Architecture and Art of Imperial Rome

Art History IV focuses on Imperial Rome, the major players of the imperial era and their artistic patronage, from the first through the fourth centuries CE. The mystique of Roma Aeterna began with the paved roads essential for Rome’s commerce and for the army. The engineering marvel of the aqueducts brought water to the city of Rome. Roman architects mastered a new material, concrete, to construct vaults and domes of such famous buildings as the Pantheon, the Baths of Caracalla, Markets of Trajan, and Hadrian’s Villa. Most magnificent is the late first-century CE Colosseum, which stands today as the symbol of Eternal Rome. There and elsewhere in Rome, famous men clamored to have life-size statues of themselves set up. Private art was different. Behind the facades of upper-class houses in Pompeii and Herculaneum the wealthy citizens commissioned stunning wall paintings, luxurious gardens and waterworks, as well as marvelous marble portraits and exquisite jewelry. Art History IV, part of a series of art history study groups, covers art and architecture of the ancient and medieval worlds. Dr. Molly Lindner received a Ph.D. in the History of Art at the University of Michigan and was an associate professor at Kent State University until her retirement in 2013. Teaching art history to OLLI learners is a great pleasure for Dr. Lindner.

Dates: January 17 - February 14
Instructor: Molly Lindner

Current Events, Law, Policy and Politics

It Takes a Village to Ban a Book—Censorship and Linguistic Justice

Current calls for book bans reflect a history of censorship, a kind of linguistic injustice in the spotlight now. By contrast, community-based literacy resists bans and supports linguistic justice. We will examine the history of book bans and resistance to them, past and present: public libraries provide a key resource for everyone; independent reading groups under the auspices of libraries or entirely separate, even when segregated, have offered reading and educational opportunities; media-based book activities like Oprah’s Book Club and Good Reads promote and encourage reading; finally, bookstores have long served as a base for community literacy and linguistic justice.

Alice Horning taught writing and linguistics at Oakland University for 30+ years and has taught a variety of classes for OLLI on language, literacy and social justice.

Day/Time: Mondays, 10:00am - 12:00pm
Date: February 6 - February 27

Strongmen: Mussolini to the Present

We will read and discuss the title book by Ruth Ben-Ghiat. She has studied authoritarian leaders and has arrived at the common methods they employ to gain power, using examples of a range of leaders from Mussolini through Putin and Trump. They are self-proclaimed saviors of a nation who evade accountability and destroy the protections of democracy. They promise law and order, then legitimize lawbreaking, destroy the truth and they become wealthy.

The author describes the conditions that enable these rulers to gain power, the tools they use to stay in power and the various ways they are deposed. She suggests ways we can recognize, resist and prevent their rise to power. Gerry Lapidus has conducted OLLI book discussions for many years. The classes are informal and conversational. He leads the first week’s discussion and requests volunteers to lead the remaining sessions while he serves as moderator.

Day/Time: Mondays, 1:00 - 3:00pm

Lady Justice

We will read and discuss the title book by Dahlia Lithwick, which describes a grassroots movement among women in law and government who mobilized against Trumpism and its threats to the rule of law. The book describes their attempts to work towards a just world and strategies to reach their goals. Some examples are: Sally Yates, the acting U.S. attorney general, who refused to sign off on the Muslim travel ban; Roberta Kaplan, who sued neo-nazis over the Charlottesville riot using the Klu Klux Klan act of 1871; and Brigitte Amiri and Vanita Gupta, two women of immigrant backgrounds who resisted, among other things, the president’s efforts to prevent abortions and to separate families at the U.S.-Mexico border.

The author also describes the struggles of Anita Hill and Christine Blasey Ford, the women who accused Clarence Thomas and Brett Kavanaugh of abusive behavior in their Supreme Court confirmation hearings. Please read Introduction through Chapter 3 (p. ix – 38) for the first session. Gerry Lapidus has conducted OLLI book discussions for many years. The classes are informal and conversational. He leads the first week’s discussion and requests volunteers to lead the remaining sessions while he serves as moderator.

Re-entry: Second Chances for Those Returning to Our Communities

How do we as a society respond to those people who return to our communities after incarceration? What kind of programming, services and support can we/will we be willing to provide? What is needed to ease their transition back into society and give them the opportunity to reach their full potential. This class will discuss the challenges and opportunities for the successful integration of those who have been impacted by the justice system. Some of the topics will include trauma and mental illness, housing, jobs, education, criminal background checks, and public registries. We will provide opportunity for audience input and discussion and provide an opportunity to hear from a justice-impacted person who can share his/her difficulties as they return to our communities. Kathie Gourlay holds an M.B.A. from the University of Michigan. She is a retired Washtenaw Community College instructor who is passionate about criminal justice reform. Kathie volunteers with the American Friends Service Committee and Friends of Restorative Justice of Washtenaw County. The Ethics of Human Gene-Editing (S)

With clinical trials currently in process, human gene-editing is fast becoming a reality. It holds the promise of curing or preventing genetically determined diseases and dysfunctions like sickle cell disease and blindness. The technology also offers the possibility of selecting for desirable traits or enhanced capabilities in future generations. The ethical issues of human gene-editing are still being debated. How can “good” and “bad” uses of gene therapy be distinguished? What are the risks involved, and when are the risks justifiable? What oversight of these experiments should exist, and by whom? Should it matter whether the gene-editing occurs in the lab or in the body? Should it matter whether the edits affect only the patient or all the patient’s progeny? Who should have access to this technology? Should autonomous individuals, the scientific community, or society at large decide these issues? This topic is a spin-off from the Ethics SIG. Participants will have read several articles in advance of this discussion session.

Terry Smith has been a member of the Ethics SIG since its inception. He has served on hospital and health system ethics committees and participated in the remotely-led OLLI course on CRISPR and the Gene-Editing Controversy.

Crisis Decision-Making in U.S. Foreign Policy: Global Energy Shortages, Ukraine Conflict, and Taiwan Security

This discussion group seeks to understand how the U.S. Government operates at the highest levels when faced with international crises. Drawing on cases developed by the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR), we will discuss how departments and agencies work together in the National Security Council (NSC). As background, historical context and available online information will help everyone understand the institutions and players involved. A highlight of the class will be role-playing, where class participants take on positions in a simulated NSC meeting, interacting with participants to make policy recommendations. Selected readings and materials matched to the case involved, along with guidance/tips will help all participants in their preparation. As topics, the discussion group will focus on three crises: global energy, Ukraine conflict, and Taiwan. John Fogarasi is both a lecturer and practitioner of U.S. foreign policy, having taught political science / international affairs earlier in his career and later as a senior U.S. diplomat with over 30 years service in Europe, Asia and North America. Low Pay and Long Hours: How Trucking Became Sweatshops on Wheels (S)

The course will briefly review how deregulation of the trucking industry turned a good blue-collar job into a job so bad that companies cannot recruit and retain qualified drivers. The inability to recruit and cultivate safe drivers has threatened our supply chain and threatens the safety of workers as well as the safety of the motoring public. I am Professor of Economics at Wayne State University and a former truck driver with nearly a million miles of experience. I have contributed to a global policy movement supporting minimum wages for truck drivers, which for the United States requires eliminating the truck driver exemption from the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Liberals and conservatives differ on many constitutional issues currently being contested in national and state politics, including freedom of speech and religion, abortion, gun rights, LGBTQ rights, equal protection of the law, environmental regulation, voting rights, gerrymandering, affirmative action, and presidential, federal agency and state legislative powers. This lecture discussion class will focus on the current legal status of these issues rather than on the merits of the respective positions. Investigating American Presidents

“It is not unheard of in American history for presidents to wield their significant powers in ways that are contrary to law or that call into question their fitness for office. What happens when presidents or their administrations are thought to have engaged in misconduct or the abuse of their powers?” This study group will examine this topic in 12 video lectures from The Great Courses, featuring Paul Rosenzweig, JD, Professorial Lecturer in Law at the George Washington University Law School. Two lectures will be viewed in each session followed with discussion. Ann retired from an automotive career, earned a JD mid-career, has been a member of OLLI since 2015.

Gender Bias and Central Bank Communication: Do Americans Trust Female Policy Makers? (S)

Modern economic policymaking requires effective communication. In particular, central bankers communicate facts about the economy and aim to shape individuals’ expectations about the economic future and the central bank’s capacity to manage it. To do so effectively, central bankers must project expertise and, often, anti-inflation zeal. However, those forms of credibility are often male-coded and may disfavor female central bankers in that role. In this study group, we will share and discuss our research which considers the actual extent of that bias: Does ‘femaleness’ undermine central bankers’ effectiveness as communicators? Do Americans (especially men) respond much better to male than female communicators? Does ‘female attributed messaging’ impact optimism about the economic future or trust in the Federal Reserve? How does ‘female attributed messaging’ impact our optimism regarding inflation or unemployment? Do these findings help explain women’s absence from public-facing central bank positions? We will share key elements of our research and invite participants to discuss our findings. Dr. Bodea and Dr. Kerner are professors in MSU’s Department of Political Science.

Liberals for Cultural Moderation and Critical Thinking

One of the least recognized and most pernicious effects of the crippling partisan divide in the country is the effect it has on the dialog and quality of discussion within each “side”. It is easy for liberals to see such group thinking and uniformity on the right. It is harder to see this same dynamic on the left. The group will focus on learning from and supporting each other as we study and question the effects of liberal orthodoxy. Several readings will also be assigned. Dennis Muzzi is a retired social worker and part-time faculty at Wayne State University. He has facilitated many groups, which will help maintain the safety needed for such discussions.

HISTORY AND CULTURE

“Liberty, Equality, Fraternity”: Jean-Jacques Rousseau and the French Revolution

“Liberty, Equality, Fraternity” is widely known as the stirring slogan of the French Revolution. In this study group, through an examination of the life and thought of pre-revolutionary visionary Jean-Jacque Rousseau and of the major events of the Revolution itself, we will reflect upon and wrestle with the internal tensions and, indeed, contradictions embodied in this slogan. To what extent, for example, does the quest for liberty impinge upon the longing for equality, and vice versa. To what degree, moreover, does the thirst for fraternity compromise the desire for both liberty and equality. Barry Shapiro is a French revolutionary scholar and Emeritus Professor of History, Allegheny College, Meadville, PA.

The Politics of Production in Jeffersonian Virginia

Our current political moment exhibits, as vividly as any other in our history, the impulse of American political culture to frame social conflicts as debates over correct understandings of philosophical concepts such as freedom, equality, rights, etc. The ‘idiom of rights’ was perhaps the most culturally powerful and enduring facet of the American Founding. Yet this language requires translation to discover the particular, material question at issue in any particular debate. This seminar will examine the first party system in American politics, and the ways in which Jeffersonian Republicans and Hamiltonian Federalists developed a public political discourse to debate an urgent, but unspeakable, material problem facing the nation: the perseverance of slavery in a land of liberty. Jason Barrett is Professor of History at Lawrence Technological University. This seminar is presented from material for his book project, The Market’s Virtu’: Law and Property in Jeffersonian Virginia.

Intro to (some) European Board Games

Was Monopoly or Sorry! the last board game you played? Board games are getting more popular because the newer styles are so much better than they used to be. In this interactive class, intended for board game novices with little or no experience, a new game or two will be introduced each week, all the instructions will be provided, and you’ll get the chance to play. We’ll have a little tile-laying, a little worker placement, some deck building, some cooperative play, some engine building, some social deduction party games, and a few to play with younger people (that are still fun for we older folks). Exploring fun game design is the theme of this group, not competition – all should be comfortable and relaxed about losing. Mary Garton has enjoyed playing board games for a number of years, especially when the family was home, in high school or college. She would like to show newbies the variety of themes and styles of games out there, as it’s a fun way to get together.

MUSIC, THEATER, AND FILM

Cinema's Exiles: Detective Mystery Fiction On Film

In the 1920s and ’30s, German filmmakers fled Europe as Hitler and the Nazis came to power. Many landed in Hollywood and had successful careers, influencing American film for a generation. We’ll look at two films that help tell this story: Double Indemnity (1944), with its film noir influences from German cinema, and whose refugee director became one of the great chroniclers of distinctly American stories. Casablanca (1942), whose cast mirrored the desperate tales of escape portrayed in the film, considered to be the most anti-Nazi film ever made, and one of the most beloved of American films. Scheduled films are subject to change, as streaming service availability may change. Each film will have two online meeting sessions: a presentation meeting on a Friday, and a discussion meeting the following Tuesday. Watch the film at home in between the two meetings. All films are available to rent online (such as Amazon, YouTube, and AppleTV). Some films can be accessed through a streaming service subscription (such as HBOMax). George Ferrell has led several detective mystery film study groups.

The Value and Meaning of Silence

In a world in which noise levels are increasing exponentially, the question of the meaning and value of silence becomes ever more urgent. The overriding question the course will address is ‘how can silence affect selfhood in both positive and negative ways?’ Through lecture and discussion, we’ll reflect on this question by addressing related questions: What is silence? Is it necessary for intellectual and moral enlightenment and a full realization of self? How does it function in the arts, in social communication, in one’s relation to the divine or eternal, in the oppression of others? We’ll look at answers offered by philosophers, theologians, artists, and social science scholars. Kathleen Wider is Professor Emerita of Philosophy, University of Michigan-Dearborn and has taught and published extensively on self and consciousness.

BREATH: The New Science of a Lost Art

The health you enjoy today, and for the rest of your life, begins with your next breath. Dr. Andrew Weil says: “If I had to limit my advice on healthier living to just one tip, it would be simply to learn how to breathe correctly.” No matter what you eat, how much you exercise, how skinny or young or wise you are, none of it matters if you’re not breathing properly. Modern research is showing us that making even slight adjustments to the way we inhale and exhale can jump-start athletic performance; rejuvenate internal organs; halt snoring, asthma, and autoimmune disease. Please read the book: BREATH by James Nestor before the class. Mike Murray is a Clinical Psychologist. He’s been breathing since the day he was born.

Philosophy and Physics

Throughout most of the 19th century the relation between observer and “reality” was relatively simple: the universe existed independent of the observer, and it was the observer’s, particularly the physicist’s, job to measure and understand it. With the early 20th century revolutions in relativity and quantum mechanics, that relationship became much more complex. In this course we will view and discuss a Great

Flying Saucers and Their Occupants

In this study group we will examine the rise and popularity of a concern that aliens are observing and even visiting us, perhaps taking a chosen few of us on field trips. We will also examine the recent discovery of hundreds of exo-planets and its impact upon our views of the extent of intelligent life elsewhere in our galaxy and universe. So part of the time we will be looking at the saucer phenomenon, and part of the time we will be looking at what scientists are concluding from current observational evidence. Radio Astronomy: Observing the Invisible Universe

The class will cover the science and development of radio astronomy and its amazing discoveries. We will view two 30-minute video lectures by Dr. Felix Lockman from the Teaching Company, each followed by 20 minutes for answering questions and discussion. The study group leader worked 27 years as a research physicist for Ford and taught physics at several levels. At OLLI, he has taught 23 science study groups and led 5 book discussion groups.

Day/Time: Wednesdays, 1:00 - 3:00pm
Date: January 18 - April 5
Instructor: Dick Chase
Location: Trinity Lutheran, 1400 W Stadium Blvd #5353, Ann Arbor, MI 48103
Cost: $50

Starry Messenger

We will read and discuss Starry Messenger: Cosmic Perspectives on Civilization by Neil deGrasse Tyson. In this book, Tyson brings the perspective of science to an examination of critical issues of the contemporary world. These include “war, politics, religion, truth, beauty, gender, and race.” By employing a “cosmic perspective” he attempts to elicit a deeper sense of unity for us all around these issues. Tyson is a leading American astrophysicist, author, and science communicator. For five years he was the host for the PBS program Nova Science Now. Currently, Tyson is the head of the Hayden Planetarium in New York City and a research associate of the Department of Astrophysics at the American Museum of Natural History. Group meetings will be informal, conversational and led by members. All opinions will be thoughtfully and respectfully received.

Lifelong Happiness

Research on factors that contribute to lifelong happiness have been extensively studied in the last 30 years. The first session will review the history of happiness studies and the many promoted routes to happiness that have been shown to be ineffective. The second session will review the range of actions/activities for which there is strong research-based support in promoting lifelong happiness and life satisfaction.

Jerry Miller is an emeritus faculty member in the UM Department of Psychology where he taught undergraduate and graduate courses for over four decades. He has lectured widely as part of his desire to share empirical insights from psychology with a wide range of adults.

Day/Time: Wednesdays, 10:00am - 12:00pm
Date: February 15 and March 1
Instructor: Jerry Miller

Museums and Stolen Artifacts (S)

When we admire works of art or cultural artifacts in museums, we may not realize that they may have been stolen or ‘bought for a pittance’ during colonial conquest and rule or during modern day war. Think of the ‘Benin Bronzes’ stolen from the Benin shrines in west Africa by British troops, Native American sacred objects and human remains residing in museum displays and storage rooms, and works of art stolen by the Nazis and now in museum collections. What should museums do about these artifacts?

Ethical questions can be raised about whether or not museums should return these artifacts to countries of origin or to the descendants of the original owners. There are rational arguments for and against repatriation. Perhaps there are alternatives to repatriation that might be fair to all parties.

Material for this study group was originally developed for the OLLI Ethics SIG. The format includes both lecture and discussion. Background material and questions for discussion will be provided in advance for Study Group registrants. Pre-reading is expected. The facilitator for this class is Camille Orso. Camille has a masters degree in cultural anthropology from the University of Pennsylvania, and a masters in public health from Harvard.

Day/Time: Tuesday, 1:00 - 3:00pm
Date: March 14
Instructor: Camille Orso
Location: Online only
Cost: $10
Lessons in Educational Diversity (S)

Federal prisons are rich in diversity with people of color, people from around the globe, sexual orientation, all ages and income levels. Judy Wenzel taught high school completion classes beyond GED at the federal prison in Milan. Many men said they’d never even seen anyone who wasn’t white before being incarcerated. Lessons were both rich and challenging. Raised in an all-white, small community herself, Judy was on a constant learning curve. All of this speaks to the current, divisive trends across the country today. This round table discussion will include participants’ own experiences, their comments and questions. When she retired, Judy wrote Light from the Cage: 25 Years in a Prison Classroom.

Day/Time: Wednesday, 1:00 - 3:00pm
Date: March 1
Instructor: Judy Wenzel
Location: Turner Senior Resource Center, 2401 Plymouth Rd., Suite C, Ann Arbor, MI 48105
Cost: $10

The Clothesline in the Arts (S)

Reviving memories of early days when laundry was always hung to dry outdoors - when folks went “online” without the internet! In this lively virtual presentation, there will be bits of washday history, along with the sociological, psychological, cultural, historical, and ecological aspects of using the clothesline. See how the humble laundry line has made its way into literature, art, music, theatre, and more. You will view the clothesline in ways never before appreciated, and understand how a return to the old ways may be kinder to our environment. Get a peek into Anne’s vast collection and consider sharing your own personal stories. Anne has been a clothesline historian and hobbyist for over 40 years, and loves sharing her passion with those who remember.

Day/Time: Tuesday, 1:00 - 3:00pm
Date: February 14
Instructor: Anne Lawrence
Location: Online only
Cost: $10

TECHNOLOGY

The Problem of Electronic Waste and How to Make Our Devices Last Longer (S)

When our electronic devices break down, or just work poorly, we often get rid of them and buy new ones. Sometimes buying new is the only solution, but what is the environmental impact of our electronic waste? For example, making a new iPhone SE can produce 140 lbs. of CO2 emissions—more than a Delta flight from Detroit to Cleveland.

Many of us are surprised to learn that there are easy, practical alternatives that help the environment and save us money. In this presentation, Jim Keen will explore the problems of electronic waste, how to make our devices last longer, and when necessary, the proper ways to dispose of our electronics. Jim Keen holds a B.A. (communications) and an M.A. (educational studies) from the University of Michigan. He currently owns and operates Keen Focus Technology Tutoring.

Day/Time: Wednesday, 10:00 - 11:30am
Date: February 8
Instructor: Jim Keen
Location: Jewish Community Center 2935 Birch Hollow Dr, Ann Arbor, MI 48108
Cost: $10
WRITING

Writers Unlimited
Participants present their short stories, novels, essays, or poems to be read in class. Fellow writers give constructive criticism and suggestions for improvement. Participants submit their writing to all other participants in advance of the Friday meeting. Constructive comments are offered after each reading. Discussion leader Jerry Janusz has been a member of this group for thirteen years.

Writing a ‘Legacy Letter’
A legacy letter (also called an “ethical will”) is a written document that allows you to share your life lessons, express your values and transmit your blessings to future generations. A legacy letter is shorter than a memoir, typically just a few pages. Writing one is a rewarding experience that creates an enduring gift for family, friends and loved ones. This study group includes discussion and brief writing exercises to help you examine your life history, explore your values and capture important insights. It offers advice, encouragement and a model structure to help you draft and complete your own legacy letter. Jay Sherwin has practiced law, given away money for five different charitable foundations and served as a hospital chaplain. He has taught this course online for OLLI programs nationwide.

Writing Our Stories
Participants will learn how to tell the stories of their lives and those of their ancestors. We will meet weekly, and each participant should be prepared to read a story they have written (including the first class). Jan Price calls herself a “very amateur memoirist” who has written her story after being motivated by an OLLI class.

Day/Time: Fridays, 10:00am - 12:00pm
Date: September 23 - August 25
Instructor: Jerry Janusz

YOUR GUIDE TO LEARNING WITH ZOOM

Zoom is a video conferencing platform that provides high definition, interactive collaboration tools for communication. To access Zoom, you will need a laptop or desktop (Windows or Mac), tablet or smartphone (iPhone or Android.) The following equipment will enhance your experience:

WEB CAMERA: A camera will increase your connection with the instructor and your peers by allowing you to see each other face-to-face. If you don’t have access to a web camera, you will still be able to see the instructor.

MICROPHONE: This will let you be heard during your class. You don’t need fancy equipment; it can be headphones with a microphone incorporated and if using your smartphone you can use the microphone that came with your smartphone. Many modern computers have a microphone built in.

A Zoom account isn’t required to attend our course sessions. Call the office to schedule one-on-one, in-person Zoom help with Ryan or Julie - we are available by appointment - call (734) 998-9351 to schedule!

IF YOU HAVEN'T USED ZOOM BEFORE, ALLOW ABOUT 15 MINUTES FOR SETUP BEFORE FIRST USE.

- Using a laptop or desktop: Download the FREE and secure Zoom program to your computer.
- Using a tablet or smartphone: Download the free and secure Zoom application from the app store.

Your Safety Comes First!
We ask that you please do not share program links nor meeting passcodes with individuals not registered for the program. OLLI-UM has various safety measures to ensure unexpected guests do not attend Zoom offerings. If you have any questions about these security measures, contact us at olli.info@umich.edu. Your privacy and safety are always a top priority.

If you’d like to learn more about Zoom, please visit the OLLI video catalog and look under ‘Tutorials’ where you will find a Zoom meetings tutorial hosted by OLLI at UM staff and volunteers. The video catalog website is: https://olli-umich.org/olli/index.php/member/video_ctlg

THE COMMUNITY PROGRAMS OF THE GERIATRICS CENTER

Enhancing Quality of Life at TSRC

OLLI-UM is a community program of the Geriatrics Center. Below is information on our other community program partners.

TURNER SENIOR WELLNESS PROGRAM

The Turner Senior Wellness Program (TSWP) promotes quality of life among older adults through social connection, wellness activities, health education, and community resources. TSWP offers healthy living presentations, free blood pressure screenings, exercise classes, support groups, a lunch program, technology mentoring, and more. Visitors can learn about available resources for caregiving, counseling, dementia services, depression, legal issues, and insurance questions, among other topics.

TSWP is slowly reopening the center for in-person programming. Though many of programs continue to be offered virtually, some classes will be offered in-person. All offerings will now be virtual, in-person, or in-person with a virtual option. Also, some open center hours are now being offered. Please check the website at michmed.org/tswp or call 734-998-9353 to check the latest center hours and classes.

To get involved with programs, learn more about the TSWP, or volunteer:
Hours: Monday – Friday 9:00am – 5:00pm
Email: tswp.info@med.umich.edu
